FOREWARD

This year was the two-hundreth and first session of Hampden-Sydney College. I attempted to capture those three short, but memorable, seasons in two-hundred and seventy-two pages of pictures and print – the 1977 Kaleidoscope. Although many events of this past year seem so vivid in our minds now, this book will hopefully be able to refresh our fading memories in future days.

I would like to acknowledge my indebtedness and extend my gratitude to the following people:

John Perry, the Hunter representative, for his friendship and all the good times Jay Moore and Jay Earhart, for their various efforts

All my photographers, too numerous to name individually, for putting up with me

Hype, for his inexhaustible support and loyalty

Mom and Dad, for their understanding And especially to Carrie, without whom this book would not have been possible.

DEDICATION

The 1977 Kaleidoscope is dedicated to Dr. W. Taylor Reveley, the president of Hampden-Sydney for the past fourteen years. The faculty paid Dr. Reveley a high tribute in stating:

"At all times you have shown yourself a gentleman and a Christian, with a door open to those who wanted to talk and a willingness to hear those who might disagree. There have been a patience, a tolerance, a kindliness, a sense of ethical behavior that marked a truly noble character."

MEMORIES

BY W. TAYLOR REVELEY

In August, 1921, President Eggleston wrote his Hampden-Sydney classmate, Dr. Woodworth. Dr. Eggleston had been president at Hampden-Sydney for two years and was describing the state of affairs on campus:

"My two years of work here have been pleasant, but very strenuous. The College was in a very critical condition and the atmosphere was one of pessimism. I believe things are now on the up grade and the pessimism is gone. The outlook is good, and I believe that in a few years we will have all the students we want and can handle. Last session we added the ninth and tenth professors, and next session we will add the eleventh, and it looks as if we will break the attendance record of 145 years."

Dr. Eggleston had arrived in a difficult period of Hampden-Sydney's history. During the twenty years of his tenure as president he was to face even more difficulties as he successfully led the College through the depression. New buildings were added: Bagby Hall (1922), The College Shop - now Office of Institutional Development (1928), an addition to the Library - now Winston Hall (1936), Morton Hall (1936). The last two major additions to the campus were constructed during depression years. In a letter August 1, 1919, Dr. Eggleston wrote: "You will be interested to know that we are installing an electric light system for Hampden-Sidney." The faculty increased during these years from nine in 1919 to twenty in 1939 and the student body grew from 157 to almost four hundred.

A distinguished educator prior to accepting the presidency of his alma mater, Dr. Eggleston had come to Hampden-Sydney with some reluctance. In the same letter he revealed:

"I declined the Presidency of Hampden-Sydney under the old conditions, but when the College was taken over by Synod and the Board appointed by Synod offered me the position again,

I decided to accept. I have for several years rather hoped that the time would come when I could devote all of my time to definite and active Christian work and this call seemed to fit in with this wish."

The quest for quality of mind and heart which characterized Dr. Eggleston's leadership and which found its source spring in Samuel Stanhope Smith's vision that a college be established to train young men to be "good men and good citizens" has continued to be the dream of those who came to lead the college. President Gammon, President Robert, and President Gilmer upheld the primary goals of the college and increased its strength. The student body passed the five hundred mark and the faculty reached thirty-two in number. Gammon Gymnasium (1940), Johns Auditorium (1951), Eggleston Library (1961), and Winston Hall, formerly the Library which burned in 1941, (1962) increased the effectiveness of the physical facilities.

The last fourteen years have been the present for me. These years have been lived in the grateful awareness that Hampden-Sydney of today stands on the shoulders of those who have served before us. We, too, shall pass on a goodly heritage. New facilities have been constructed; an able and devoted faculty has been assembled; the personal quality of a small college has been preserved even though the size of the student body has grown; the academic program has been strengthened and its liberal arts quality has been retained; the relatedness to the Presbyterian Church has been reaffirmed and given a new structure designed to enhance the Christian witness in the College and in the Synod of the Virginias; and the fiscal stability of the College has never been greater.

These advances have, like all progress, not been without stress and struggle. They have been accomplished because the Hampden-Sydney community, both on the campus and wherever parents, friends, and alumni may be found, is richly endowed with men and women of integrity, wisdom, and faith. Too strong to be cowed by adversity, too noble to act for self serving ends, and too diligent to be diverted to petty acts, they have served the College well. These are the persons who have made the past fourteen years fruitful for the College and richly rewarding for Mrs. Reveley and me. These same persons will sustain and enrich the leadership of President Bunting.

What, then, can one say of the future? Little, in truth, if what one wants to know is on what date the Athletic Center will be completed or when the endowment will reach twenty million dollars. However, without even recourse to a crystal ball, one can say that the College has a young and capable new President whose leadership will bring the College to new highs in achievement and strength – and all three of the former presidents now living will rejoice with him in that progress.
